The Constitution of 1963 provides for a court of appeals, whose jurisdiction is provided by law and the practice and procedure prescribed by rules of the supreme court. The court of appeals currently has 28 judges, who are nominated and elected at nonpartisan elections from four districts as provided by Act 190 of 1993.

The legislature may increase the number of judges and alter the districts from which they are elected. When it first began operation in 1965, the bench of the Court of Appeals was comprised of nine judges. In 1969, the legislature increased the size of the bench to 12 judges, and further increases occurred in 1974 (18 judges), in 1988 (24 judges), and in 1993 (28 judges).

A candidate for the court of appeals must be a lawyer, under 70 years of age, a qualified elector, and a resident of the district in which he or she is running.

Judges are elected for six-year terms. Their salaries are set by the legislature. Every two years a chief judge is selected by the supreme court. In addition to hearing cases, the chief judge performs administrative duties and other assignments required by the supreme court.

The court of appeals hears civil and criminal cases.

Three-judge panels of the court of appeals hear cases in Lansing, Detroit, Grand Rapids, and Marquette. The panels are rotated to encourage statewide uniformity in rulings by eliminating the likelihood of conflicting legal philosophies developing in specific geographical areas. The procedure for hearing cases is similar to that followed by the supreme court. The decision of a panel of the court of appeals is final except in those cases where the decision is reviewed by the supreme court.

Activities and Workload

In 2006, 7,951 cases were filed in the Michigan Court of Appeals. This represents an increase of 4.22% from the 7,629 cases filed in 2005 and a .19% decrease from the 7,966 cases filed in 1986. The court of appeals disposed of 8,278 cases during 2006, an increase of 5.41% over the 7,853 cases disposed of in 2005 and a 25.9% increase over the 6,573 cases disposed of in 1986.

Prior to 1998, court of appeals' statistics reflected one case per each lower court number that was referenced in a file. Starting in 1998, these statistics reflect one case per each court of appeals docket number regardless of how many lower court docket numbers might be referenced in that file.

542 • Chapter V – THE JUDICIAL BRANCH

The average number of cases filed in the Court of Appeals per judge has fluctuated over the years. In 2006, there was an average 284 cases filed per Court of Appeals judge. Filings per judge have ranged from a low of 163 in 1969 to a high of 556 in 1992. The averages of new filings per judge do not reflect the past impact of the temporary assignments of visiting judges to the court.
